WHY STEVIA LEAF?

Stevia is the popular name for an ingredient derived from the Stevia REBAUDIANA plant. The leaves of this plant contain a number of compounds that have a very sweet taste, such as STEVIOSIDE and REBAUDIOSIDE. When processed into sweeteners, the sweetness of stevia can reach 50–350 times that of granulated sugar. This sweetener also contains zero calories and few carbohydrates, making it suitable as a sugar substitute for diabetes.

- SWEETENERS THAT ARE SAFE FOR DIABETES

Sugar and sweet foods seem to be the biggest enemy for diabetics. However, this time you who have diabetes mellitus can still taste sweet food again by using stevia sweetener.

- LOW CALORIES

Excess weight is actually related to the consumption of foods high in sugar and calories. With zero calories, this stevia sweetener is more friendly for those of you who want to maintain weight.

- HELPS CONTROL CHOLESTEROL

Stevia consumption also helps increase levels of “good” HDL cholesterol. In contrast to LDL, high HDL levels actually help reduce the risk of stroke and heart disease due to blockage of blood vessels.
